Gould Loses Battle To Alumni 37-34

The Alumni and Gould played "hang-up" basketball last Friday with the Alumni holding a slim edge as the whistle blew. Too much height and too much Bob Browne spelled defeat for the hard fighting midgets. Brown collected eight baskets and two free throws for a total of 18 points. "Lanky" Austin with eight points proved a little too big for the youngsters under the basket.

For the undergraduates, Parker Brown was outstanding, holding the sharp shooting Don Stanley scoreless and then changing over to hold Bob Browne to one basket in the last half. He also, along with Robertson, led in the Gould scoring with three baskets and a free throw for seven points.

The game proved a thriller as Gould matched the old timers point for point during most of the game. The first period ended 10-3 for Gould and the half was 19-13 for the Alumni. In the third period the winners assumed a 32-27 advantage but in the early stages of the final quarter the Blue and Gold staged a rally that brought them to within a point of the leaders, the score being 32-31. Here Charley Smith sank a long shot and Austin followed with a tip-in shot which really clinched the game.

In a preliminary game the Gould Second team played poorly and lost to West Paris 20-17. Both teams scored seven field goals but the West Paris boys were successful in sinking six out of eight free throws while the Gould underclassmen made three out of nine. Smith, for the victors and R. Wentzel for the home team, played the best ball for their respective teams.

Mechanic Falls Wins 42-21

With two men trying to guard him, Keene still starred, collecting 23 points for his team. That was mainly the story of the game. The locals were up against a bigger and better team. The Gould midgets found it almost impossible to guard their taller opponents without fouling.

The losers played poorly getting off to a bad start they fell behind 11-0 at the first quarter and seemed unable to hit their stride.

The Gould girls also tasted defeat 27-21 although they showed considerable improvement over their play in previous games.

U.S.S. Maine Sunk 39 Years Ago

Thirty-nine years ago this month the nation was shocked by the news that the U. S. S. Maine had blown up in Havana Harbor while on a friendly visit to Cuba.

Two hundred and fifty-four lives were snuffed out in the first blast. Thirteen others died later of their wounds. Eighty-four shell-shocked, nerve-racked men survived the catastrophe, none of whom ever fully recovered from the dreadful horror of that tragic moment.

The explosion occurred at nine-forty o'clock in the night of February 15, shortly after a young marine trumpeter had blown "Taps." A moment before the tragedy Captain Charles D. Sigbee, who was writing at his desk in his cabin, laid down his pen to listen to the notes of the bugle which, he afterwards said, "were singularly beautiful in the oppressive stillness of the night."

Following the blast the whole forward part of the ship catapulted upward in a searing flame, amid the crash of falling beams and twisted bits of debris, and the sound of shattered bodies as they fell into the sea.

In the confusion that followed discipline was superb. Every able-bodied member of the crew did his part in rescuing those not fatally injured, even though threatening flames and minor explosions still harassed the vessel.

The cause of the explosion is more or less of a mystery. It destroyed a warcraft, which at that time, was the pride of the Navy. It aroused public sentiment to the boiling point, and prompted millions of voices to raise the battle-cry of the Spanish-American War: Remember the Maine!

Commits Suicide By Hanging

Clifton Herbert Swan of Locke Mills committed suicide by hanging at his home early last Friday morning. He was found in his room about 4:30 o'clock. He had not been well for some time and it is thought that ill health was the cause.

He was born in Greenwood Oct. 11, 1882, the son of Newell and May Cummings Swan. He was educated and always lived in his native town. On April 18, 1905, he married Miss Maude Swan of Bethel, who survives, with a son, Winifred Swan of Locke Mills, and a daughter, Mrs. Flora Hutchinson of Mexico. He also leaves a brother, Dennis Swan of Locke Mills, and three sisters, Mrs. Ralph Bacon, Mrs. Nettie Chase, and Mrs. Lois Yates, all of West Paris, and Mrs. Maude Cole of Portland, besides four grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the church Sunday, Rev. P. J. Clifford officiating. Burial was at Locke Mills.

Miss Fannie C. Hastings

Miss Fannie Carter Hastings died Saturday morning at her home at North Bethel after a week's illness. She was born in Bethel Jan. 6, 1855, the daughter of St. John and Elizabeth Atherton Hastings.

Survive Collision With Train

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Briggs of West Paris came near to having a fatal accident when going to their respective places of work Saturday morning. Mr. Briggs works at the Feldspar mill and Mrs. Briggs at Penley Brothers' mill. The car Mr. Briggs was driving collided with the engine of a Portland bound through freight at 6:40 o'clock. The impact threw the auto over the 15-foot embankment to a distance of 20 feet beyond without it touching the ground. The car landed right side up but was demolished beyond repair.

Mr. Briggs suffered no serious injuries but Mrs. Briggs suffered from shock; several cuts about her head and face which required stitches; an injured ankle and bone in the hip. She is at Rumford Community Hospital.

Jobs Grow In La

New Employment is Created by Machines in Industry

The popular fallacy that machines have created unemployment in America is flatly contradicted by a study of the subject which has just been completed by McGraw Hill Publishing Co.

According to this study, 60 per cent of which were published in the August issue of the magazine "Factory," jobs have increased faster than population in this country during the very period when machine age was developing rapidly.

From 1899 to 1929, while population of the United States increased from 74,799,000 to 121,000,000 or 62 1/2 per cent, and all jobs increased 68 per cent, in factories showed an increase of 100 per cent. The total number of factory jobs in 1929 at the time of the machine age was 3,511,000 compared with 4,712,000 in the study showed.

The number of gainfully employed increased from 390 per thousand of population in 1899 to 470 per thousand in 1929 while more machines were being installed. During the same period study showed 192 out of 1,000 men at work were employed.

College Seeks Reason For High Hay Yields

Among the many activities of the crops specialists of the University of Maine Extension Service last year, the organization of a 700-Pound-Protein club in Franklin county was probably the most unusual. Men interested in qualifying for membership set aside at least half of their hayland, from each acre of which they were to cut a minimum of 2½ tons of hay containing 700 pounds of crude protein or more. County agent Ralph Corbett, Farmington, recorded a complete history of each field, and cut a sample of at least one square foot from each acre. These samples were analyzed at the University of Maine. Samples were taken from 29 fields on the nine farms, and the average yield was 6668 pounds of hay to the acre. The average protein content per acre varied from 705 pounds on one farm to 1310 pounds on the highest yielding farm. Seeding which had been down for five years produced about as much hay as that being cut for the first time, but the yield in terms of protein was about one-third lower on the older fields, due largely to difference in the clover stand. Early cutting of fields with a high percentage of timothy gave a decided increase in the protein content.

No special fertilizer applications account for these yields, which are about three and a half times the state average, for the club requirements were not announced until most men had completed their spring fertilizer program. The yield was not proportional to the amount of clover or timothy in the stand. Detailed analysis of the soils, and careful study of the past history of these fields is now underway. Working with the Maine Experiment Station, the Extension Service expects that this information will aid them in making more specific recommendations on how to reduce the grain bill of Maine farmers.

Jobs Grow Faster Than Population In Last Half Century, Study Shows

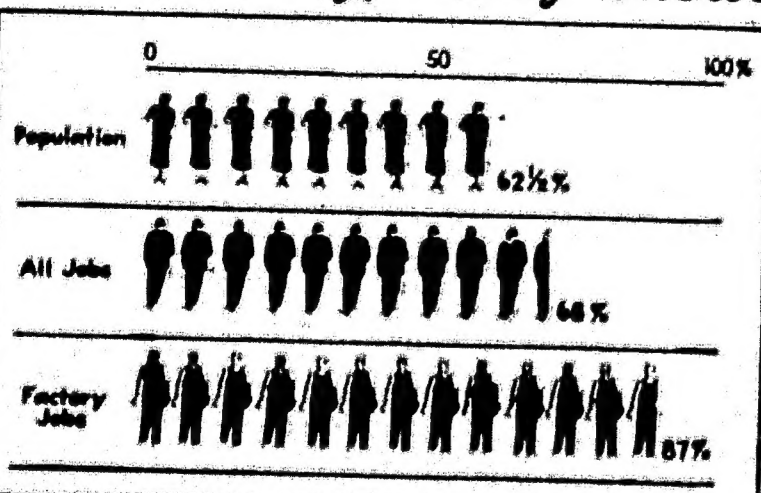

New Employment is Created by Machines in Industry

The popular fallacy that machines have created unemployment in America is flatly contradicted by a study of the subject which has just been completed by the McGraw Hill Publishing Company.

According to this study, the results of which were published in the August issue of the magazine "Factory," jobs have increased faster than population in this country during the very period when the machine age was developing most rapidly.

From 1899 to 1929, while the population of the United States increased from 74,799,000 to 121,526,000 or 62½ per cent, and while all jobs increased 68 per cent jobs in factories showed an increase of 87 per cent. The total number of factory jobs in 1929 at the height of the machine age was 5,522,000 as compared with 4,713,000 in 1899, the study showed.

The number of gainfully employed increased from 390 per thousand of population in 1899 to 490 per thousand in 1929 while more and more machines were being installed during the same period, the study showed 182 out of every 1000 men at work were employed

The number of gainfully employed between 1899 and 1929 increased faster than the population of the country, as shown by the above chart, but jobs in manufacturing industries, where great technological advancement was made, increased even faster than general employment.

In factories in 1899 but by 1929 the number had increased to 180 out of each thousand at work.

A close relationship between machines and wages was discovered in the fact that total horsepower installed in factories increased from 3,411,000 in 1879 to 42,385,000 in 1929 or 12½ times. During the same period, however, total factory wages increased from $118,000,000 to $11,667,000,000 or 12½ times.

In this fifty year period, while population increased 2½ times, factory jobs increased 3½ times, the study showed.

"If America had kept on doing all its work by hand," the magazine comments, "this rapid increase of jobs and wages never would have come. There would have been no automobiles, no radios, few of the 'good things of life' now in general use."

D. H. SPEARRIN, IN HIS MILK DELIVERY TRUCK

DANIEL H. SPEARRIN

Mr. Spearrin was born in Greenbush, Maine, Sept. 14, 1874, and was educated in the common and high schools of that town.

In 1894 he came to Bethel and for 14 years was engaged in the ship-knee business with A. L. Young after which he was in this line for himself two years. After this for 18 years he was in the employ of the Merrill, Springer Co., and their successors.

For the past 20 years, beginning when he was working in the mill, he has carried on a retail milk business. In this work he takes great pride, having a herd of 18 Guernsey cows and every accessory to make his equipment equal to the best and his product of high quality.

Mr. Spearrin first married Miss Hattie Clark of Bethel, who died leaving a daughter Gladys, now the wife of Herbert Holbrook of Lynn, Mass. He later married Mrs. Bernice Green of West Milan, N. H. They live in the former Clark place on Vernon Street which, with modern improvements and land acquired to accommodate the dairy business, is a most attractive and convenient village-farm property.

He is a member of Mt. Mica Lodge, I. O. O. F., of South Paris, and the Bethel Chamber of Commerce, and is president of the Bethel Townsend Club.

HOW I BECAME A RADIO STAR

By PHIL LORD

I'VE had the spirit of adventure in me as far back as I can remember. The wanderlust started working when I was very young, and my first ambition was to sail on a four-masted bark and explore the seven seas. My aspiration never did assume much reality until I was older, but that same feeling of restlessness, prompted me to try experiments in life I might never have dared.

I was born in Vermont, son of a minister, but most of my boyhood was spent in Connecticut where my father had his parish. Phillips Andover Academy beckoned to me for a chance at a secondary education, and I followed this up with four years at Bowdoin College in Maine. Then I took to school teaching and wound up as principal of a high school in Plainville, Conn.

Something occurred to me one night as I sat in a barber's chair which unquestionably catapulted me on my present career. I heard a radio program which was reenacting the lives of folks in New England. They did a pretty poor job of it, and I detested the manner in which they dealt with Maine. So I sat down and started writing some radio scripts concerning the people of the Pine Tree State. Finally I sold one to a station in Hartford. It seemed to make a good impression on the air, and they asked me to write a weekly series. Officials of NBC heard of the idea, and soon afterwards Seth Parker was being brought to millions over the facilities of a nation-wide hookup.

Then an idea came to me to dramatize the files of the Department of Justice in Washington to reveal via the radio for the first time the stories behind the G-Man's activity. A few years ago, I thought of a new radio program with which I could do little at the time. Finally, I was able to devote my attention to it, and formulated plans for presenting unusual experiences in the lives of everyday American citizens as told by the persons themselves—a real people's program. For the first time in the history of radio, a sponsor was to buy time on the air.

PHIL LORD

and turn it over to Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen to do with it as they chose. The result was the "We, The People" program heard every Sunday afternoon over the NBC-Blue network.

Each week a committee of four people—a businessman, a school-girl, an automobile mechanic and a housewife—peruse countless letters from every corner of the United States to determine who shall be summoned to relate an unusual experience. We have welcomed such men as Edward F. Younger, the man who picked the Unknown Soldier, George Scadding, the miner who was entombed for ten days 160 feet below the ground in Nova Scotia, and Henrietta Giroux, young Massachusetts girl who was able to walk after more than fifteen years as a hopeless cripple. It's given me more pleasure than anything I've ever done to bring these men, women and children to their fellow-citizens via the radio.

JOLLY WORKERS L-I-H CLUB

Miss Barbara Cole demonstrated "Making Gingerbread" to the members of the Bryant Pond Jolly Workers club at their last meeting. Mrs. Addelyn Mann, leader of this club, conducted a judging contest on gingerbread after the demonstration.

Barbara Cole, secretary, said "As special surprise, Mrs. Mann had made a beautiful three layer birthday cake for Carolyn Dunham, whose birthday came this month." The cake was served with pear sauce.

Plans were made for a social with the boys' club on February 8. Clementine Morgan will demonstrate uses of yeast dough at their next meeting.

Why We Laugh, Explained by Birmingham Scientist

Prof. C. W. Valentine, of Birmingham, England, startled members of the British Association for the Advancement of Science not long ago by declaring that we learn to laugh at a very early age and for definite reasons.

Among these reasons, according to the professor, are our attempts to show delight and express good will through laughing.

"I am convinced," he said, "that the first laugh (of a baby) is an expression corresponding to delight at satisfaction with food."

"At the age of three," he continued, "my daughter, after doing anything naughty, laughed in order to make her mother laugh, hoping the parent would be more friendly toward her. There we have the beginning of artificial laughter as a social means of approach when people meet others with whom they do not feel at ease."—Washington Post.

GOULD ACADEMY NOTES

Girl Reserves

In the absence of the president, Barbara Moore, Mary Clough took charge of the meeting of the Girl Reserves, which was a combination meeting of business, and vocational topics given by members of the club.

A report of the secretary, and a short discussion of the mothers' day program preceded the vocational topics. The mothers' day program is going to take place some time very soon after the annual winter carnival.

Barbara Ham gave the first topic, which was on Women in Medicine. Elizabeth Field spoke on Laboratory Technition, Florida Grover spoke on Psychiatrist of the Social Worker. Virginia Smith closed the meeting by giving a topic on Dental Hygiene.

These topics were all very interesting, and they should prove to be helpful to all the members.

The following students presented declamations in the Assembly Hall on Friday, Feb. 5: Ina Bean, Clara Silver, Rodney Eames, Arlene Brown, Helen Crouse, Kathleen Wight, Virginia Smith, Ada Cotton, Shurwin Bennett, Mary Robertson, Elizabeth Field and Jessal Brooks.

Anne A. Logofet of Boston, Mass., and Walter H. Eckhoff of New York City have enrolled as sophomores at Gould Academy this past week.

Approximately 42,000 bushels of sweet potatoes were converted into sweet potato starch last year. The starch is said to be satisfactory for starch used in sizing paper and yarn, and as an adhesive. The remaining pulp is a good livestock feed.

Four Billion Dollar Market Is Seen In Replacement Of Old Power Plants

Study Shows Pent Up Demand for New Machinery

A dammed up market for more than $4,000,000,000 worth of power plant machinery exists in American factories today, it is disclosed in a study by the McGraw Hill Publishing Company. Expenditure of this amount for the needed equipment would mean jobs for 100,000 workers for nearly 8 years, according to the study.

Results of research into this subject were published in the magazine "Factory". They show that half of the fire tube boilers in American factories are more than 20 years old; one out of four water tube boilers are a score or more years old as are one out of four automatic stokers while 2 out of 3 steam engines are more than 20 years old.

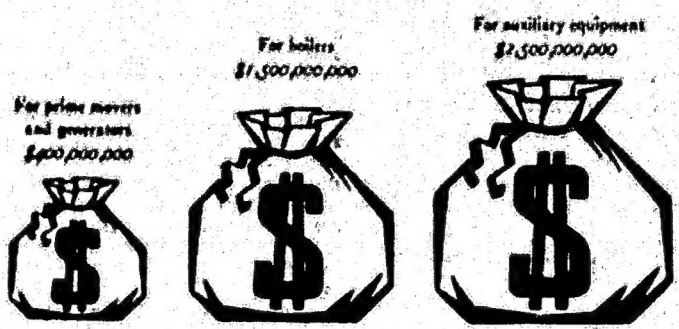

"A boiler that is 10 years old or even one that had reached the age of 20 may still be able to work," says the magazine, "but a similar boiler, 1926 model can give it a handicap of several tenths of a cent a pound and still make steam for less money."

"Because of this ancient equipment, industry is paying heavily. It wastes somewhere between 25 and 50 per cent of the power it makes. To stop this waste, to replace this obsolete equipment, the Uncertainty over the future status of industry in this country is considered by many authorities to be the reason for withholding the spending of this amount.

MAINE MEETING PLACE

An object lesson in why Maine agriculturists need the benefit of a wide advertising program to bolster up sales and prices for their products was revealed this week in an article on the food page of one of the country's greatest newspapers. In this article the writer gave a list of foodstuffs and prices at the city's leading markets as a guide for the housewife.

Here is a paragraph from this market guide:

"Ordinary Maine potatoes are all the way from 49 to 65 cents a peck, and if the Prince Edward Island variety is preferred the price is 75 cents. New Bermuda potatoes are two pounds for twenty-five cents. Idaho bakers start at 50 cents per dozen for small sized ones and range to 80 cents for the largest."

Why should Prince Edward potatoes sell for better prices than the Maine variety?

I am told that they are graded better than Maine potatoes and for that reason their quality is more uniform. They therefore bring higher prices.

Looking at the Idaho side of the picture, we find that much the same thing holds true in that case. Rigid grading, packing, wrapping, marking and advertising have made Idaho potatoes the Prima Donnas of the tuber world.

Assuming that the 80 cents per dozen article mentioned in the size, that would mean that Idaho newspaper story were the ten ounce growers are getting $1.80 per peck for these potatoes, an almost fabulous price.

Those listed at 50 cents per dozen is just another way of saying that they are bringing $1.10 per peck.

It would be a rash person indeed who would say that Idaho potatoes are worth three times as much as those raised in Maine.

On the contrary, there are many of us who firmly believe that our Maine potatoes are far and away better than those raised anywhere else in the world.

What, then, is the answer? Simply that Idaho growers have taken advantage of every modern means to "put over" their product. They grade, pack, wrap and advertise Idaho potatoes in such a way that they find an eager demand everywhere.

In other words, they are not dumped on the markets as just potatoes. They are Idaho potatoes.

As a result, Idaho growers and shippers have benefitted immeasurably.

We can do the same thing here in Maine, and, if I may say so, I think we can do it even better.

Maine has 41,907 farms.
